Frohnburg Castle was built in the 17th century as a country house for the prince archbishops.

Used in the movie as the front of the Von Trapp Villa the following scenes were shot: when Maria’s first arrival at the Von Trapp Villa; the Captain tearing down the nazi flag above the doorway and the family’s attempt to escape from the nazis by pushing their car silently out of the gate and get caught.

Bus n° 3 or 8 from bus-stop “Rathaus” (city center) to the bus-stop “Polizeidirektion”, then turn right to “Frohnburgweg”. By bicycle or foot through the lane “Hellbrunner Allee”

The Gazebo. The palace Hellbrunn with its parks was built in 1612 by Markus Sittikus as summer-seat south to the city. After a complete renovation, the Sound-of-Music-pavilion was reconstructed close to the Hellbrunn Trick Fountains (from the Renaissance).

One of the main locations for the movie is the glass gazebo, setting for the two main love scenes: ’Sixteen Going on Seventeen‘ (Liesl and Rolf) and ’Something Good‘ (Maria and the Captain).

Leopoldskron Castle is without doubt one of the most beautiful rococo buildings in the Salzburg region and was built in 1731 by Archbishop Leopold Count Firmian as a residence for his family. Today it is owned by the “Salzburg Seminar in American Studies”, an institution that focuses on economy matters and is run as a hotel.

Scenes in which you see the garden and the terrace: the family drinking pink lemonade ("not too sweet, not too sour, just too... pink!"); the children falling off the boat in the lake, Maria and the Captain arguing. The Venetian room from the castle was copied and used as the ballroom for the interior shootings which were done in the studios.

City-map  Grid F7. Take Bus n° 22 from “Hanuschplatz” (fish-market) – bus-stop “Wartbergweg”; follow the “Firmianstraße” straight ahead
Salzburg Surroundings

Sites situated outside Salzburg e.g. the church in Mondsee, can be visited with a private car or public bus.

Mount Untersberg – 1,853 meters above the Salzburg basin - offers a great view across the region. You can climb Mount Untersberg, which takes more than 2 hours and which you should not attempt without proper footwear and windbreaker, as well as food and water provisions. You should also not be afraid of heights. There is an easier way though, you can also take the cable car.

You can see Mount Untersberg twice in the movie: in the opening scene, when Maria sings "The Sound of Music", and in the escape scene (the end), when you hear "Climb Ev’ry Mountain" while the family climbs their way to Switzerland. A lot of footage shown in the very first scenes (before Maria starts singing), was also filmed from the Untersberg.

Bus n° 25 (“Rathaus”) or “Trainstation” or "Mirabellplatz", all three from the city center of Salzburg to Grödig – Untersbergbahn Talstation (Cable car Valley station)

The Cathedral of Mondsee dominates the small town of Mondsee. It once was the heart of an important monastery. Founded in 748 A.D. on the ruins of a Roman settlement, it influenced the culture of the region for more than a thousand years until it was dissolved in 1792.

The wedding scene for "The Sound of Music" was filmed here, the impressive organ is seen and heard.

Bus n° 140 from the railway-station to Mondsee

St. Gilgen is a beautiful village that is situated at a popular lake of the Salzkammergut, The Wolfgangsee. Anna Pertl (Mozart’s mother) was born and his sister Nannerl died here. That is why a little Mozart museum has been set up in the city center.

You can see the village in the aerial view at the beginning of "The Sound of Music".

Anif Castle. The castle of neogothic style was built in the 19th century as a summer residence for the Bishops of Chiemsee, Bavaria. Today, it is the private property of the Count Moy family. It is of historical interest because the last Bavarian King, Ludwig II, abdicated here in 1918. NOT ACCESSIBLE!

The castle can be spotted in the beginning of the film, during the aerial view of the Salzburg region.

Bus n°25 in direction to “Untersberg”
